

BING'S DELI

Avon by the Sea, NJ

Three things we noticed about Bing's Deli

A few observations from a quick look at your market. This is a fraction of what a full Market Intelligence Report uncovers.

1

SEASONAL TRAFFIC PATTERN

Your summer surge creates a 4-month window where you likely generate 60-70% of annual revenue.

As a shore town deli in Avon by the Sea, your business experiences dramatic seasonal fluctuations tied to beach tourism from Memorial Day through Labor Day. The local population swells from around 1,800 year-round residents to over 10,000+ during peak summer weeks, creating intense demand periods followed by quieter winter months. Strategic staffing, inventory management, and off-season revenue strategies could help smooth this feast-or-famine cycle.

2

COMPETITIVE POSITIONING

You're competing in a tight radius against at least 8-10 other breakfast and lunch spots within a 2-mile stretch of Route 71.

The Avon/Bradley Beach/Belmar corridor has become increasingly saturated with quick-service breakfast and lunch options, from bagel shops to cafes to other delis. Your differentiation likely hinges on specific menu items, speed of service, or local loyalty built over years. Understanding what specifically drives customers to choose Bing's over nearby alternatives—whether it's a signature sandwich, convenience, or relationship—is critical for retention.

3

LOCAL DEMOGRAPHICS SHIFT

Avon's growing population of young families and remote workers represents an untapped weekday lunch and catering opportunity.

While traditionally a seasonal retirement and vacation community, Avon by the Sea has seen an influx of younger homeowners and remote professionals, particularly post-2020. These year-round residents need consistent weekday meal solutions, whether for home offices, family gatherings, or small events. Building catering packages, loyalty programs, or online ordering specifically for this demographic could create more stable off-season revenue streams.

BUSINESS PULSE

Three things we

WANT THE FULL PICTURE

noticed about Market Intelligence Report — your complete edge Bing's Deli

BING'S DELI

Avon by the Sea $199

FLAT FEE · 48–72 HRS

— BACK —

A few observations from a quick look at your market. This is a fraction of what a full Market Intelligence Report uncovers.

Professional research. Real analyst review. Flat fee.

Your summer surge creates a 4-month window where you likely generate 60–70% of annual Every report is reviewed by an analyst with over 10 years of market research experience before it reaches you.

Sea Glass Insights Revenue.

As a shore town deli in Avon by the Sea, your business experiences dramatic seasonal fluctuations tied to beach tourism from Memorial Day through Labor Day. The local population swells from around 1,800 year-round residents to over 10,000+ during peak summer weeks, creating intense busy periods followed by quieter winter months. Strategic staffing, inventory management, and off-season revenue strategies could help smooth this feast-or-famine cycle.

Market Intelligence Report	$199
Social Media Audit	$199
Secret Shopping	$299
Deep Dive Report	$399
Voice of Customer Survey	$499
AI Starter Kit	$99

John Messina

(732) 548-3808

john@seaglassinsights.com
seaglassinsights.com

You're competing in a tight radius against at least 8-10 other breakfast and lunch spots within a 2-mile stretch of Route 71.

The Avon/Bradley Beach/Belmar corridor has become increasingly saturated with quick-service breakfast and lunch options, from bagel shops to cafes to other delis. Your differentiation likely hinges on specific menu items, speed of service, or local loyalty built over years. Understanding what specifically drives customers to choose Bing's over nearby alternatives—whether it's a signature sandwich, convenience, or relationship—is critical for retention.

LOCAL DEMOGRAPHICS SHIFT

3

Avon's growing population of young families and remote workers represents an untapped weekday lunch and catering opportunity.

While traditionally a seasonal retirement and vacation community, Avon by the Sea has seen an influx of younger homeowners and remote professionals, particularly post-2020.

These year-round residents need consistent weekday meal solutions, whether for home