

BUSINESS
PULSE

Three
things
we noticed about Bing's Deli

BING'S
DELI Avon by the Sea,
NJ

*A few observations
from a quick look at your market. This is a fraction of what a full Market Intelligence
Report
uncovers.*

1

SEASONAL OPPORTUNITY

Your summer tourist traffic creates a massive revenue window that deserves strategic preparation

Avon by the Sea sees population surges during peak beach season, with visitors flooding the boardwalk area where your deli is positioned. Most successful delis in Jersey Shore towns generate 60-70% of annual revenue between Memorial Day and Labor Day. Optimizing your staffing, inventory, and hours specifically for June through August could dramatically impact your bottom line.

2

LOCAL COMPETITION

You're competing in a tight radius

with several established delis that have loyal year-round followings.

Within a three-mile radius, you're up against well-known names like Booskerdoo Coffee, Frank's Deli in Asbury Park, and multiple bagel shops that draw the breakfast and lunch crowds. Your differentiation strategy needs to be crystal clear, whether that's specialty sandwiches, faster service, or unique menu items that nearby competitors don't offer. The locals who sustain you through winter will determine your survival more than summer tourists will.

3

DIGITAL PRESENCE

Your online visibility directly impacts whether tourists find

you before they find your competitor

Visitors to Avon
research dining options
on Google Maps and Instagram before they even arrive at their beach rentals. A deli
with strong reviews,
updated hours, and
appealing food photos
captures the tourist dollar while competitors with weaker online
presence get passed over. Investing in your Google Business Profile and encouraging review
generation during peak
season could be your highest-ROI marketing activity.

WANT THE FULL
PICTURE?

Market
Intelligence$199
Report —
your complete
edge

FLAT FEE
· 48-72
HRS

John Messina

(732) 518-3898

john@seaglassinsights.com

seaglassinsights.com